

The diagram illustrates the process of saving a player's game. The system stops the timer, updates the player's account and leaderboard data, retrieves file paths and constants, and uses the `DataWriter` class to save user, dungeon, and game information. It concludes by confirming that the game has been successfully saved.